TURKEYS IN PUBLIC SPACE is a community zine project & website about documenting the wild turkeys that live in and around Boston and Cambridge, MA.

Turkey photos in this edition of the zine were submitted by folks from the community.

You can check out the website and share your own turkey pics & stories. If you have other turkey-related content (stories, drawings, poems, questions, songs) that you would like to contribute to a future edition of the zine, you can email us at hello@turkeysinpublic.space.

Thank you for reading and contributing <3

HAND TURKEY COMPETITION

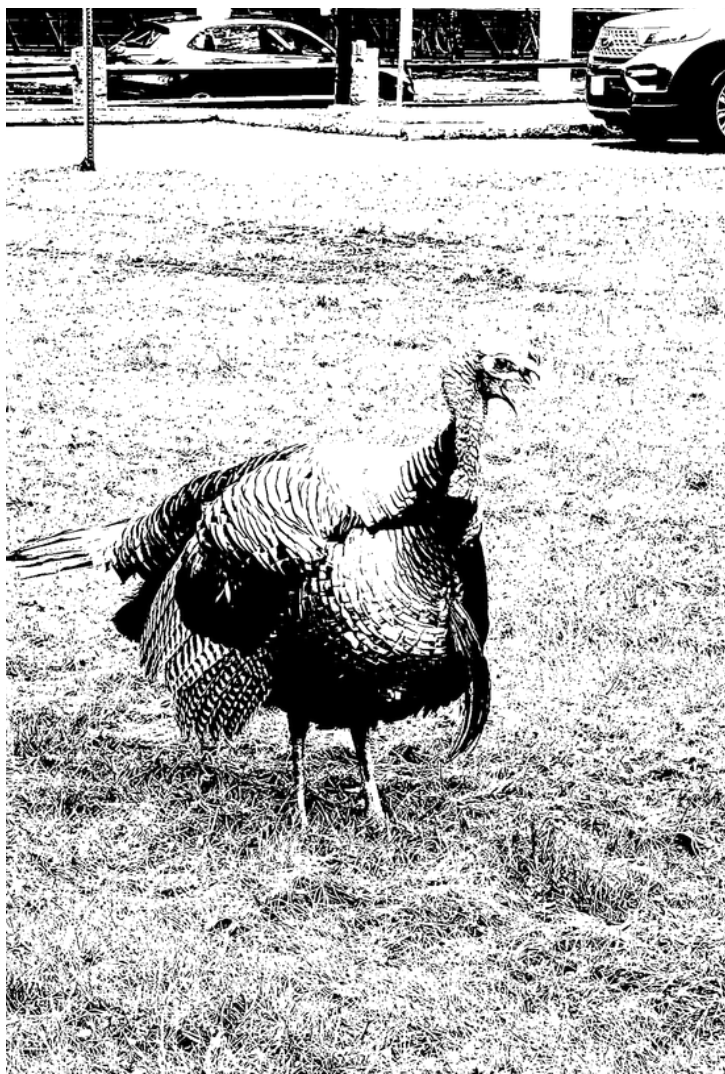

Competition rules:

1. Make a hand turkey (trace a hand, make it into turkey)
2. Scan or take or picture
3. Upload to turkeysinpublic.space/handturkey

Winning (all?) submissions will be printed in a future volume of Turkeys in Public Space.

Winners will be judged based on standard hand turkey assessment measures. Creativity rewarded.
Anatomical accuracy optional.

DID YOU KNOW?

In a letter to his daughter Sarah, Benjamin Franklin lamented that the bald eagle had been chosen as a representative of the United States. He wrote that “For my own part I wish the bald eagle had not been chosen as the representative of our country,” because it is “a bird of bad moral character” that “does not get his living honestly” because it steals food from the fishing hawk and is “too lazy to fish” for itself.

The turkey, by contrast, was “a much more respectable bird” and “a true original native of America.” It was “a bird of courage” that “would not hesitate to attack a grenadier of the British Guards who should presume to invade his farm yard with a red coat on.”

The eagle is a bird of bad moral character... it does not get its living honestly... it is too lazy to fish for itself. The turkey, on the other hand... that is a bird of courage! That would not hesitate to attack a grenadier of the British Guard who should presume to invade his farm yard with a red coat on.
